Chemours Plunkett Awards

Proprietary Information

For up to five years after submission of the entry, Chemours and the judges shall each maintain in confidence all information disclosed, either written or pictorial, that is identified as confidential by the entrant. If mutually agreed, confidential information may be returned before the five years have passed. This agreement shall then expire early as long as Chemours or the judges retain no copies of the confidential information.

Selection panel will use such information only in evaluating the entry. However, these obligations of confidentiality and limited use shall not apply to information that is or becomes publicly known through no fault of the receiving party, already known to the receiving party, as shown by that party’s prior written records; subsequently learned by the receiving party from a third party entitled to disclose it; subsequently developed by the receiving party independent of information received from the disclosing party; or required to be disclosed in accordance with applicable law or pursuant to court or other governmental order, provided the party required to make such disclosure gives the other party reasonable advance written notice to allow time to seek a protective order.

Except for information clearly labeled as confidential, all information contained in the entry form and supporting materials will be considered for use by Chemours or its agents in preparing press and promotional information describing the winning entries.

Each entry is submitted in expectation of winning and the subsequent publication of press and promotional information describing the entry. Accordingly, information necessary for the public to understand should not be identified as confidential. Chemours may develop potentially publishable articles including such information and offer them for publication. Chemours will submit any written materials to the company or organization involved for review and non-objection before dissemination.

Additional Information

For additional information about the 2018 Chemours Plunkett Awards, contact your Chemours representative or visit Chemours.com/plunkett-awards.